

Oliver Bierhoff

Former International Footballer

"One of Germany's most charismatic and engaging sports personalities"

Oliver Bierhoff is a German football official and former player who played as a forward. He has previously served as the national team director of the German Football Association.

TOPICS:

- Motivation
- Teamwork
- Crisis Management
- Overcoming Obstacles
- Conflict Management
- Goal Achieving

LANGUAGES:

He presents in English and German.

IN DETAIL:

As a junior player Oliver was ranked amongst some of the game's biggest talents, he played in the German Bundesliga, in Austria and in Italy. In the mid 90's he shot to fame as one of the most successful players in international football. A highlight of his career was his debut for Germany in the 1996 European Cup, in which he scored 'the golden goal' for his home side thus ensuring their victory in the championship. Until stepping down in late 2022, Bierhoff was active as the Managing Director of National Teams and the Academy for the world's largest football federation. He is now bringing his sport's expertise to the "other" football, having joined the New England Patriots as a consultant in late 2023. Furthermore, he co-founded Finvia Sports and is chairman for Frankfurt, Germany-based Family-Office for professional athletes.

WHAT HE OFFERS YOU:

In his presentations he draws parallels between the winning edge required in sports and in the business and management arena. His strong inspirational message highlights the principles required for a successful business namely: leadership, teamwork and motivation.

HOW HE PRESENTS:

Oliver "wows" audiences with high energy presentations; using images and anecdotes from his highly successful playing career he always follows his talks with a lively and entertaining Q&A session with the audience.